

Emotional and Behavioral Issues of 21st Century Learners

Feb. 5, 2018; 9 am - 2 pm
(lunch included)

at Foundation for Educational Administration Conference Center
12 Centre Drive, Monroe, NJ 08831

Presenter: Michael C. Selbst, Ph.D., BCBA-D, Director, Behavior Therapy Associates, Somerset, NJ

This interactive seminar will address some of the most challenging mental health and related behavior issues students experience, including depression and suicide, substance abuse, school avoidance and dropout, and significant behavior issues. Dr. Selbst will discuss the common signs of distress and dangerous coping skills. Effective prevention and intervention need to include early identification of problems, student engagement, home-school collaboration, key resiliency factors, fostering an emotionally and physically safe learning environment, and creating a positive school culture and climate. Participants will collaborate in small groups to discuss these issues, share the steps they have taken in their respective districts, and develop a working plan to maximize their district/school's ability to address these challenges. This will help participants better learn effective interventions, sharpen their leadership skills, and turnkey valuable information.
